Geeks and Gurus, Inc. Merges with Salty Dog Solutions, LLC

Effective July 1st, 2011, Geeks and Gurus, Inc. of Detroit, Michigan will merge with Salty Dog Solutions, LLC of Madison, Wisconsin and continue doing business as Geeks and Gurus, Inc. Eric J. Selje, President of Salty Dog Solutions, will remain in Madison and continue to work with existing customers as well as taking on new roles with Geeks and Gurus' customers.

Salty Dog Solutions and Geeks and Gurus are both software development companies that strive to provide quality, affordable data-based solutions. Each has a long history of building, maintaining and supporting Visual FoxPro applications and both companies have aggressively moved forward in Microsoft's .NET environment. Our teams are equally comfortable with traditional line-of-business applications as well as websites and web-based applications.

"I'm very excited by the opportunity to be working with Eric. I've known him for several years and known of him for more. He's always impressed me with his knowledge and interest in software development." said Stephen J. Bodnar, president of Geeks and Gurus. "By combining our efforts, we will be able to give all of our customers even better service and position ourselves for additional opportunities in the future."

Our founders share not only similar histories, but similar values when it comes to the developer community. Eric founded MadFox, the Madison FoxPro Users Group. Steve was one of the original founders of DAFUG, the Detroit Area FoxPro Users Group. Each is currently active in .NET user groups. Eric and Steve also both spend time speaking at developers' conferences and user groups. Each will be presenting two sessions at Southwest Fox in Gilbert, Arizona this October. Eric has also been published in FoxRockX, "The ultimate magazine for the professional Visual FoxPro developer."
